THE SEVENTY-FIFTH REPORT
OF THE
COMMISSIONERS OF NATIONAL EDUCATION
IN IRELAND,
SCHOOL YEAR, 1908-9.

TO
HIS EXCELLENCY JOHN CAMPBELL GORDON,
EARL OF ABERDEEN, K.T., G.C.M.G.,
LORD LIEUTENANT-GENERAL AND GENERAL GOVERNOR OF IRELAND.

May it please Your Excellency.

We, the Commissioners of National Education in Ireland, submit to Your Excellency this our Seventy-fifth Report. In this report the statistics of attendance, religious denominations, etc., in the schools, are for the year ended the 31st December, 1908, the financial statements are for the year ended the 31st March, 1909, and the general information is brought up to the 31st July, 1909.

While the regularity of attendance of the pupils in our schools cannot yet be considered satisfactory, we are pleased to be able to note some advance under this head during the past year. The centesimal proportion of the average daily attendance of pupils, for the year 1908, to the average number on the rolls of the schools was 69.8, which is the highest figure yet recorded in our reports. It must, however, be remarked that some part of this increase is to be attributed to an alteration which we have ordered in the method of keeping the school rolls, whereby, as in England and Scotland, the names of pupils must be removed from these rolls when no attendance has been made for four consecutive weeks. On the other hand, as the average daily attendance of pupils for the year was higher than it had been in any previous year (with one exception) since 1900, we are warranted in concluding that the pupils of our schools are becoming more regular in their attendance. We observe, moreover, that the number of pupils of eleven years of age and above, and of those ranking in the fifth and higher standards marks a very perceptible increase on the numbers previously recorded.

Attendance

There is still a large number of Urban and Rural districts in which the provisions of the Irish Education Act touching compulsory attendance are not yet in operation. While there can be no doubt that the enforcing of these provisions has been instrumental in increasing the regularity of school attendance in rural districts, it does not appear that a corresponding improvement has been produced in urban districts where the Act has been applied. Our records show that the attendance of pupils in these districts is not more regular where the Act is enforced than it is where there are no school attendance committees. The high standard of attendance reached by Carlow and Bagenalstown (86 per cent. in each case) appears to prove that this unsatisfactory result is largely due to lack of energy on the part of many attendance committees or their officers, or to neglect of duty by the local magistrates. But we think that it is also to be attributed to defects in the Act itself. The number of attendances required in each half-year is too small for urban centres, the minimum leaving age for those who have reached the prescribed standard* is too low, and, worst of all, the number of notices to be served on defaulting parents is too great.

We are also strongly of the opinion that the full amount of the fines levied under the Act ought to go towards the defraying of the working expenses.

Building grants.

Since we were able, as mentioned in our previous reports, to complete an arrangement with the Treasury, whereby, in addition to certain sums to be made available from the Ireland Development Grant, a fixed sum of £40,000 per annum was to be provided for school-building grants for each of the three years 1907-8, 1908-9, and 1909-10, the managers of schools have, with commendable zeal, made numerous applications to us for money to build and improve the schoolhouses in all parts of the country. These applications have been all the more urgent owing to the enforced inactivity imposed on the managers for several years past by the stoppage of the funds provided for the improvement of school buildings. The cessation of these grants was most unfortunate and has produced a condition of things which it will take many years to remedy. During the year which ended on the 31st March last we have considered a very large number of applications for these grants, and have approved of expenditure estimated at over £120,000. These cases represent only a small portion of the unsuitable school buildings, and a very large number of urgent cases still remains undealt with.

We have sanctioned grants in excess of two-thirds of the estimated cost of the buildings in 80 cases of school-houses in needy and congested districts. In most of these cases our grant was based on five-sixths of the estimate, one-sixth only of the cost being left to be provided out of local funds.

We have again to call attention to the large number of schools under two or more teachers in which the work of instructing and training the pupils is carried on in a single room. We desire to urge on the managers the importance of providing class-rooms in such cases. In numerous school-houses class-rooms can be formed by dividing the single large room by partitions of wood and glass.

*see Schedule XI, page 76, of the Commissioners' Rules and Regulations for 1909-10.

Single-room Schools.

We desire to advert again to the supplementary grant of £114,000 which was voted by Parliament in July, 1908. As we stated in our last report, our proposals in regard of this grant were disregarded by the Irish Government and the Treasury, and we were forced to accept a method of allocation, which we strongly disapproved. We considered this scheme to be faulty in principle, and in practice, its defects have been made more glaring by the method of distribution which we have been compelled to adopt. Under this scheme an additional payment of £10 per annum is made to each teacher in the first grade, and one of £7 to each teacher in second or third grades, irrespective of length of service, efficiency, average attendance, or any other condition. We do not consider that the payment of this increase in a lump sum to each teacher at the end of the year in which it is earned is a desirable or, from the teacher's point of view, an economical method of distribution, and we are of the opinion that this increase should form an integral portion of the grade salaries. A similar course ought to be followed in regard to the grant of £4 per annum made to junior assistant mistresses of two years' efficient service.

Teachers' Salaries.

During the past year we have renewed our application to the Treasury for funds for the purpose of providing special bonuses for the principal teachers of large schools. The provision of these formed part of the scheme put forward by us last year for the allocation of the augmentation grant. We believe that the introduction of such supplements (estimated to cost about £11,000) to the ordinary salaries would have more effect in attracting teachers of superior attainments and efficiency than the increasing of the average emoluments of the general body of the teachers by such small sums as £10 and £7. The scale of salaries and payments in force since 1900 has increased the emoluments of the average teacher, but it compares unfavourably with the previous system in this respect, viz., that before 1900 a greater opportunity was given to young teachers of ability of rising quickly to a high rate of salary. The provision of bonuses for principals of large schools would compensate for the slower rate of promotion, which is a feature of the present system, and would undoubtedly act as a strong incentive to bring into our service young men and women of attainments much above the average. It is much to be regretted that we have again been unsuccessful in our application to the Treasury to sanction this essential reform.

Bonuses for Teachers of large schools

We are anxious that great care should be exercised in appointing the principal teachers of large and important schools, and that full weight should be given to previous experience and efficiency. With this view we have made a regulation providing that no teacher shall be eligible in future for appointment as principal of a school having an average attendance of 95 or over until he has given five years' satisfactory service as an assistant or as a principal of a smaller school.

Junior
Assistant Mistresses.

Since we obtained authority in July, 1906, to institute a new class of teacher (viz.: junior assistant mistresses) in certain schools where the average attendance is insufficient for a certificated assistant, the managers have taken full advantage of this privilege. At the present time over two thousand of these junior members of the staff are recognised, and, according to the reports of our inspectors, render valuable assistance and materially aid in increasing the efficiency of the smaller schools. We are anxious to extend the services of this class of teacher to schools with two certificated teachers, in which the average attendance of pupils ranges from 85 to 94. It is generally admitted that this type of school is understaffed, and that the difficulties of organization and instruction cannot be successfully dealt with in such circumstances unless the staff is improved. We have requested the Treasury to sanction the appointment of junior assistant mistresses in such cases, but we regret that our appeal has met with no success.

Higher grade schools.

We have further to express our disappointment that our renewed proposals for the introduction of many other educational schemes, to which we have directed Your Excellency's attention in previous years, have again been refused favourable consideration by the Treasury. We have thought it right to continue to press upon the Government the need of instituting higher grade schools for the purpose of continuing and extending the education of our pupils beyond the point at which the resources of the rural national school begin to prove ineffective. The schools which we desire would be the natural channel for providing, in localities where secondary schools are non-existent, the means, whereby the talented pupils of a National school might enter with success upon studies leading to a university or higher technical school. Another proposal which we have again pressed unsuccessfully is the establishment of scholarships for the pupils of National schools. Our scheme comprised a system of county scholarships, each tenable for two years at an annual charge of £15, ten such being allotted on the average to each county.

Scholarships.

We have also renewed our application for permission to award fees for instruction in gardening and to supply the necessary equipment for establishing and maintaining school gardens in connection with rural schools. Our proposals, which were fully explained in our last report to Your Excellency, included provision for training the schoolmasters in horticulture both at the training colleges and by lectures at local centres, arrangements for the employment of the horticultural instructors in the service of County Agricultural Committees, and the obtaining of powers for the compulsory acquisition (where necessary) of plots adjoining school-houses. In this matter we worked in co-operation and harmony with the Department of Agriculture and Technical Instruction. In view of the enormous number of labourers' cottages with good-sized plots that have been provided at the public expense in all parts of the country, and of the necessity of training the children to raise an abundant supply of whole-gardens.

some vegetables as well as fruits and flowers, we cannot too strongly protest against the refusal of the Treasury to sanction the modest proposals which we have submitted under this heading. School gardens.

The claim of the provincial training colleges to a share in the advantages of the Free Home Grants, which are enjoyed by the colleges in Dublin, has again been pressed without result. We have also renewed our application for funds to enable us to provide accommodation for the women King's Scholars in connection with our new residential buildings at Glasnevin, which were recently opened for the men students of Marlborough Street Training College. The women students at our central training college are now lodged under conditions that in every respect (and especially in that of sanitation) compare unfavourably with those enjoyed by the students of all the other colleges, and we view with surprise the peremptory refusal of the Government to remedy this inequality of treatment experienced by the oldest established Irish training college. Training Colleges.

The question of financial provision in the Vote for Public Works, to defray the expense of heating and cleaning the school-houses, has been again under our consideration. Our applications to the Treasury for funds for this purpose have been met with a refusal. We have learned with approval of the proposals that have recently been put forward by the Chief Secretary on this subject and of the response that has been made by school managers representing seven-eighths of the children attending National schools. We would welcome an arrangement whereby the cost of heating and cleaning the school-houses might be equally divided between Parliamentary grants and local contributions, and in the event of the matter being brought to a successful issue we shall willingly co-operate in such a scheme. Heating and cleaning school-houses.

During the year ended the 31st March, 1909, we awarded promotions to higher grades to 141 principal teachers, who had successfully complied with the proscribed conditions. Of these teachers 18 were promoted to the first section of first grade, 30 to the second section of first grade, and the remainder, 93, to the second grade. Promotion of Teachers.

Besides these cases of ordinary promotion we have also had under our consideration the cases of certain principal teachers who have shown exceptional ability and high efficiency in the discharge of their duties during a long period. After a careful consideration of each such case on its merits, we have granted special promotion to seventy-three principal teachers, eight of whom were placed in the first section of first grade, seventeen in the second section of first grade, and forty-eight in the second grade.

Triennial increments of good service salary were awarded to 1,216 teachers during the same period.

Promotion of Teachers.

In our last report we expressed our dissatisfaction at the action of the Treasury in refusing to consider favourably our representations on the necessity of increasing the number of places available in the two sections of the first grade of national teachers. During the past year the number of vacant places in each of these sections has barely sufficed to allow of the promotion of all the masters who were duly qualified by the length and efficiency of their service. In the current year we have good reason for anticipating that we shall be obliged to defer the promotion of many teachers who, by efficiency and long service, have fully earned their advancement. We proposed to the Treasury a re-arrangement of the available places in the different grades whereby, in our opinion, the stability of the existing system of payments would not have been materially affected, and we regard the refusal with which we were met as inflicting a serious injustice on the teachers, and as calculated to have injurious effects on the educational interests of our schools.

Teachers' pensions.

With regard to the question of teachers' pensions, we desire to reiterate the proposed amendment in the pension rules which we submitted to the Treasury in February, 1908, viz.:—

“That in the case of any teacher engaged in a national school with 25 years' service or over who is obliged to retire owing to inefficiency without moral fault, or to permanent incapacity for his position through ill-health, 'added years' up to a maximum of ten should be allowed for the purpose of calculating the amount of the retiring allowance.”

We desire again to represent to Your Excellency that the time has now come when an inquiry should be held into the entire working of the Teachers' Pensions Act, with a view to its amendment. When account is taken of the improvement in the teachers' emoluments which has taken place since the present scale of pensions was fixed, it is abundantly clear that this scale is not commensurate with the existing status of the teaching profession.

We have had under consideration the question of extending the prescribed course of training of the King's Scholars by the addition of a third year in the case of students who show special aptitude for teaching and give promise of superior efficiency. We have obtained from the Treasury sanction for this proposal, which will not increase the annual expenditure, and regulations for carrying it into effect are at present engaging our attention. We hope that students selected for this special course will be enabled in many cases to avail themselves of the opportunity of an additional year's residence in the training college for the purpose of attending university lectures in Arts and Pedagogy, and of obtaining university diplomas in teaching. We consider that the provision for National teachers of university education, as distinguished from the mere passing of an university examination, is certain to have a beneficial effect.

Training
College Courses.

The number of schools in which the Irish language is taught continues to show a steady increase. On the 31st December, 1907, instruction was given in Irish in 2,861 schools; on the 31st December, 1908, the number of schools taking Irish had increased to 3,047. The number of schools in which the bi-lingual programme was in operation increased from 120 schools in 1907-8 to 168 in 1908-9.

Irish.

We have pleasure in reporting a very considerable increase in the number of schools in which courses in cookery and laundry work are taught to girls. On the 31st December, 1907, cookery was taught in 936 schools and laundry work in 167; on the 31st December, 1908, cookery was taken in 1,596 schools and laundry work in 227. During the school year now commencing (1909/10) we anticipate that these numbers will be substantially increased. Since we have taken steps to press for the inclusion of these subjects, and particularly the former, in the school programme, we are gratified to be able to testify to the zeal and energy shown by a large majority of the managers and national teachers in seconding our wishes. We attach very great importance to the teaching of cookery to girls of eleven years of age and upwards. Our programmes of instruction are carefully designed to afford a series of practical lessons of a simple character adapted to the means and actual circumstances of the pupils. It is not our aim to give an elaborate course of lessons fitted to produce finished cooks or domestic servants, but rather to improve the habits of living of the people by training the pupils in the preparation of such simple dishes as may easily be produced from the ordinary food-stuffs that are available. The inculcation of cleanliness, order, economy, and thrift also plays a leading part in our programmes of instruction in cookery. We recognize that many of our schoolrooms are not well fitted for the best teaching of this kind, and whilst we admit that such teaching as can be provided in our schools will not be so valuable as that which is to be got by attending the courses of instruction given by the county instructresses under the Technical Education Committees of the several counties, we are satisfied that, unless some provision for the teaching of this subject be made in our schools, the great mass of the rural population must remain in ignorance of this vital subject.

Domestic Economy.

The provision of equipment and utensils for this instruction has in many cases deterred the managers from taking up the teaching of cookery. It was partly in order to meet this difficulty, in so far as it affects small schools, that we have obtained from the Treasury sanction to make, instead of the grant of five shillings per pupil, a payment of £3, provided that there are at least six pupils in the class, but we regret to say that we are allowed by the Treasury to make this grant only in the first year in which cookery is paid for in such a school. Our organizers continue to give instruction in cookery to the teachers at local centres in different parts of the country, besides making numerous visits to the schools for the purpose of aiding in the organization and of giving advice in regard to the management of the classes. Our inspectors report that this subject is very popular with the teachers and pupils in nearly every case, and that the difficulties anticipated by many managers and teachers in regard to the supply of materials, etc., have proved in practice to be considerably exaggerated.

Domestic

Evening
schools.

Our attention has recently been directed to the conditions upon which we make grants to elementary evening schools. It has been represented to us on behalf of the authorities of technical schools throughout the country that very many urban districts are without elementary evening schools, and that, in consequence, many would-be pupils of technical schools have no means of going through such a preliminary course as would enable them to revive their knowledge of elementary subjects and so fit them to take advantage of the higher work done in these institutions. It also frequently happens that the very pupils to whom technical instruction would be of the greatest utility are those who have left the primary school prematurely or who have failed to attend regularly and to reach the higher standards. We drew up our regulations for evening schools in 1901 with the intention of affording opportunities to such persons for improvement in the subjects of a good primary school course, but we regret that, owing, as we believe, principally to the difficulty of inducing youths in towns and cities to devote their spare time to study, advantage is not taken of our grants in many urban centres. Having carefully considered this difficult question, we have adopted an alternative scheme for elementary evening schools in large urban centres which we expect to be found more suitable to the circumstances of these localities. This scheme, which now awaits the sanction of the Treasury, will, if approved, enable us to make grants for shorter classes and fewer hours of work, and will moreover render the sum payable in each case less dependent on the regularity of the pupils' attendance. The uncertainty as to the amount of the grant which may be earned under the existing system of payments for evening schools has often proved a deterrent to the managers and teachers to undertake this work.

We now proceed to give Your Excellency detailed information under various heads.

School-houses and Teachers' Residences.

1. On the 31st December, 1908, there were 8,468 schools in operation, made up as follows:—

Ordinary Schools,	7,872
Convent, „	889
Monastery, „	54
Workhouse, „	131
Model, „	71
Fishery School,	1
Total					8,468

2. Of these schools, 3,532 were vested schools, the remainder were non-vested. Vested schools.

The vested schools include (a) those vested in the Commissioners, and (b) those vested in trustees, under deeds to which the Commissioners are a party, for the purpose of being maintained as National Schools.

The vested schools were distributed according to provinces as follows:—

Provinces.	Number of Vested Schools.
	Vested in Trustees.	Vested in the Commissioners.	Total.
Ulster	557	316	873
Munster,	840	371	1,211
Leinster,	444	73	517
Connaught,	778	153	931
Total,	2,619	913	3,532

The non-vested schools include school-houses erected from funds locally provided, or, in a few instances, from loans available under the Act of 1884, 47 & 48 Vic., cap. 22, and schools formerly vested, the leases of which have expired. Non-vested schools.

3. The erection and improvement of vested school premises are carried out under the direction of the Board of Public Works. On the first of April, 1908, the amount for which that Board was liable in respect of grants already made by us and notified to them was £19,667 19s. 0d. In addition to this sum, we had made grants amounting to £34,114 5s. 7d., which had not been ready for notification to the Board of Works. The total liabilities, therefore, on that date amounted to £53,782 4s. 7d. Building Grants.

4. The following statement shows the condition of the grants and liabilities on 1st April, 1909:—

	£	s.	d.	£	s.	d.
Unexpended Grants on 1st April, 1908, ...	53,782	4	7
Grants to build and improve School-houses, made in 1908-9, ...	120,867	16	5
				174,650	1	0

				31,299	3	1
Total liabilities on 1st April, 1909, ...				143,350	17	11

The grants made by us during the year ended 31st March, 1909, were apportioned as follows:—

Erection of New Vested School-houses.			Enlargement of Existing Vested School-houses.			Other improvements to existing Vested School-houses.			TOTAL.
No. of School-houses.	No. of Pupils for which the New School-houses will afford Accommodation.	Amount of Grant.	No. of School-houses.	No. of Pupils for which Additional Accommodation will be provided.	Amount of Grant.	No. of School-houses.	Amount of Grant.

In 30 cases of the erection of new school-houses grants amounting in the aggregate to £4,107 4s. 3d. in excess of the normal grants were made, as the schools to be built are in needy and congested districts. In four of these cases the total estimated cost of the new buildings was granted.

Loans for improvement of schools.

5. We also approved of applications to the Board of Works for loans, to the amount of £4,676, for building, enlarging or otherwise improving existing non-vested school-houses.

Loans for Residences.

We approved of loans in 36 cases to provide teachers residences, and in 8 cases to improve existing residences. The total amount of the loans approved was £9,660.

Teachers' Residences.

Since the year 1875, when the National School Teachers' Residences (Ireland) Act came into force, 1,767 applications for loans, and 79 applications for grants, have been approved by us. In a large percentage of cases, however, the Teachers are as yet unprovided with suitable residences.

On the 31st December, 1908, according to returns received from the managers, teachers' residences were connected with 2,245 ordinary schools. In 950 of these cases the residence was entirely free to the teacher; in the remaining 1,295 cases the teachers paid rent or taxes, or both. The estimated annual value of free residences was £6,844.

6. According to the Returns furnished by the school managers the local expenditure on the schools was as follows:—

	£	s.	d.	Local aid towards building and repairing school-houses, school prizes, &c.
New buildings or additions to existing schools	36,490	7	7
Repairs, painting, whitewashing, and improvement of school and furniture ...	25,420	10	7
Repayments of loans for the erection or improvement of the schools, payment of interest on loans and of insurance ...	5,768	19	1
Prizes or Premiums to the Pupils ...	11,448	16	6
Heating, cleaning and other expenditure ...	42,196	19	0
	121,823	12	9

In addition, the local aid to the salaries of the teaching staff amounted to £18,250 12s. 6d.

Day Schools in Operation: Attendance.

7. On the 31st of December, 1908, we had 8,468 schools in operation. During the year 1908, 20 schools were brought into operation—viz., 12 vested in the Commissioners or in trustees, and 8 non-vested. In 96 cases the grants were either suspended or withdrawn.

The accommodation afforded in the schools was sufficient for 757,321 pupils, allowing ten square feet of floor space for each pupil. Accommodation provided.

The classification of the schools (exclusive of Model, Convent, Monastery, and Workhouse schools) in respect of the number of rooms available for school purposes is as follows:—

Number of schools with only one room ...	5,455
" " " two rooms, or a room and class-room ...	2,010
Number of schools with three or more rooms ...	408

8. In addition to the schools in operation on the 31st December, 1908, 254 to which building grants had been made were not completely built, and 9 other schools were also inoperative for various reasons. Inoperative schools.

9. 51. Colleges for the teaching of Irish.

A payment of £5 is made to special colleges for the teaching of Irish in respect of each teacher who, having attended the required number of lessons, passes the examination at the end of the course, and who subsequently teaches Irish satisfactorily in a public school for one year. In order to facilitate their attendance at these courses, teachers are granted vacation to the extent of 50 days in the year in which they attend a course, provided their schools are kept open for at least 200 days in such year. Seven colleges have been recognised, and since they were opened, 317 of the students have been registered as qualified to teach Irish as an ordinary or extra subject. These colleges will do much to meet the demand for suitably trained teachers of Irish in schools situated in Irish-speaking localities and in other schools throughout the country in which it is desired that Irish shall be taught.

The following Colleges have been recognised:—

Name.	Patron or President.	Manager or Secretary.

Compulsory Attendance Provisions of the Irish Education Act, 1892.

52. At the end of the year 1908, 210 School Attendance Committees existed, 90 in Urban Districts and 120 in Rural Districts. According to reports received from the Committees, the provisions of the Act were enforced, during the year, by 207 of these Committees. Irish Education Act, 1892.

Under the provisions of the Act, children over 6 and under 14, with certain exceptions, are required to attend school, and to make 75 complete attendances in each half-year ending respectively the 30th June and 31st December.

There are 40 towns having municipal government, to which the provisions of the Act apply, but for which school attendance committees have not been appointed. There are 126 Rural Districts without school attendance committees.

We give here a table showing, for the places with school attendance committees and for those without school attendance committees respectively, the average number of pupils on the rolls of the National Schools, the average daily attendance, and the percentage of the average daily attendance to the average number on the rolls:—
